IV. How do you foresee yourself using what you have learned in the Global Health Track after residency?

- V. Take some time to think through and list your goals for your experiences as part of the global health track. This is an important step because it will help to shape the track we collaboratively build for you.

CLINICAL EXPERIENCE, EVALUATION, and FEEDBACK

Requirements:

Residents will be involved in global health experiences to facilitate a broader understanding of the clinical knowledge, administrative expertise for planning and deploying on a global health experience, and other skills needed to translate global health work into meaningful clinical, teaching, and learning experiences.

Residents involved in the global health curriculum will:

- Be assigned a faculty advisor to guide their efforts, planning, and follow-up activities.
- Attend at least half of the monthly global health seminar sessions.
- Complete a global health experience/trip – following the trip, residents must:
 - Complete a case report based on a patient seen during the experience
- Case report should be presented at Residents’ Research Day (or another regional/national meeting – may present at both)
 - Complete a brief summary/presentation based on the experience
- This presentation should be given to the residents’ residency program group
- Consider giving this presentation to organizations providing external funding assistance or other community groups
- Summaries will be collated a part of justification to the York Health Foundation for financial support
 - Consider another scholarly project based on the experience – these may include:
- Primary research (would satisfy the case report requirement)
